

I do not believe that continued deregulation of station ownership is in the best interest of our nation or in the best interest of any democracy. Italy is a good example of how media ownership can turn into political power. Public airwaves should be just that. They should serve the interests of all the people of this great nation and not be dominated by the interests of a few giant corporations. We have long known that while capitalism is an efficient system for producing goods and services, if left unregulated the needs of the minorities are swept aside. The role of government is to protect the needs and rights of all the people. I believe the current limitations regarding ownership of the airwaves should be strengthened and not weakened. Thank you.
